An unclassable book, consisting, as Taine says, of "Twenty lines of a poet, a dozen lines of a treatise on agriculture, a folio page of heraldry, a description of rare fishes, a paragraph of a sermon on patience, the record of the fever fits of hypochondria, the history of the particle that, a scrap of metaphysics,—that is what passes through his brain in a quarter of an hour: it is a carnival of ideas and phrases—Greek, Latin, German, French, Italian, philosophical, geometrical, medical, poetical, astrological, musical, pedagogical, heaped one upon the other: an enormous medley, a prodigious mass of jumbled quotations, jostling thoughts, with the vivacity and the transport of a feast of unreason. He is never-ending; words, phrases overflow, are heaped up, overlap each other, and flow on, carrying the reader along, deafened, stunned, half-drowned, unable to touch ground in the deluge. Burton is inexhaustible. There are no ideas which he does not iterate under fifty forms, and when he has exhausted his own, he pours out upon us other men's—the classics, the rarest authors, known only to the savants—authors rarer still, known only to the learned: he borrows from all . . etc."

Dutch.

ERASMUS, Desiderius [? 1466–1536]
Apophthegmes tr. Nich. Udall $7.50 8° New York [1564]
Of chief value as being one of the oldest Eng. bks. which abound in colloquialisms and idiomatic expressions. This is a literal repr. of 2nd edn.
Familiar Colloquies tr. Nathan Bailey, ed. Rev. E. Johnson; w. notes, 2 vols. 16/–; red. to 7/6 8° Reeves & Turner 78
62 dialogues by one of the greatest representatives of the Renaissance, on a great variety of subjects, full of humour and satire, and giving a good picture of life and ideas of 350 years ago. It is of this bk. that the Monks used to say that "Erasmus laid the egg which Luther hatched."
Praise of Folly [Encomium Moriae], tr., w. 80 ill. by Hans Holbein & his Epistle to Sir Thos. Moore red. to 12/– 8° Reeves & T. 76
Probably the most satirical production of any age or country.

Written, as the author declares, "to prove that when Providence raises up such men as Cæsar, Charlemagne, and Napoleon, it is to trace out to people the path they ought to follow," etc. In reality an apology for Napoleonic absolutism; but of some value, notwithstanding.

The last (fourth) edn. has the Romanische Wortschöpfung as an appendix, first added to this edn. Includes all the Romance languages, excepting Rhæto-Romanian. Vol. i.: Intro. and Phonology; ii.: Accidence and Etymology; iii.: Syntax. The 3rd edn. [Bonn 70–72] contained numerous changes which are objected to by some scholars, who consider the 2nd. edn. [Bonn 1856–60] the best. The 4th edn. [Bonn 76–77] is a repr. of the 3rd., and the 5th edn. [in 1 vol., Bonn 82] has the vols. and pp. of the 4th in the margin. An Eng. tr. was pub. in 1863 [4/6 8° Williams] but it is next to worthless now.

Arthurian Romances [and their sources].

Collections.

HUCHER, E. [ed.] Romans de la Table Ronde, 3 vols. [w. full and valuable notes] 8° Le Mans 72–79

Contains (1) Rob. de BORRON'S Joseph d'Arimathe, in its prose version. There is also a verse version [ed. Fr. MICHEL 8° Paris 41]: neither have any reference to ARTHUR. (2) Walter MAP'S Great Saint Graal, wh. was based on de BORRON'S wk., but still has no direct connection with ARTHUR. (3) The Romance of Percivale [original form by de BORRON], wh. represents the quest for the Graal by a Knight not of the Round Table. The connecting link 'tween the two last is Merlin [attrib. to de BORRON], showing the Welsh influence; and this leads to Artus, thence Lancelot du Lac, Quest of San Graal, Mort Artus.
